

Check-in for Diving Gear/Sports Gear

The rules regarding dive gear vary widely among airlines; in most cases, there is a fee for additional dive gear, and it must be registered before departure. We cannot register dive gear for you, as the dimensions of the bag often must be specified. You can find more information about dive gear and how to book it on this page under the respective airline.

Condor:

You can find more information about dive gear and how to book it here
. You can check in your dive gear online here

Emirates

: Unfortunately, Emirates does not offer an additional diving gear package for booking. According to IATA regulations, diving equipment is charged as standard excess baggage if it exceeds the free baggage allowance. If your trip includes flights with other airlines, your diving equipment will also be charged at standard excess baggage rates. More information on excess baggage here

Lufthansa

: You can find more information on dive gear and how to book it here

Singapore Airlines

: You can find more information on dive gear and how to book it here.

Sun Express

: You can find more information about diving baggage and booking diving baggage here. You can register your diving baggage online here

TUI Fly

: You can find more information about diving baggage and booking diving baggage here
. You can register your diving baggage online here.

Air Cairo

: You can find more information about dive gear and booking dive gear here

Correndon

: You can find information on baggage regulations here. You can register your diving gear online here

Eurowings

: You can find information on baggage regulations here. You can register your dive gear online here

All details subject to change. Current prices and availability at:
<https://omneia.de/en/good-to-know>